NORTHWEST OTTAWA COUNTY HISTORICAL OUTLINE

Grand Haven, Spring Lake, Ferrysburg, and the surrounding townships, with nearly 40,000 residents today, had their beginning with a handful of settlers in 1834.

Grand Haven began as a fur trading post. The area's first permanent settler was the Reverend William M. Ferry who had previously organized a mission at Mackinac in 1822.

Arriving at the mouth of the Grand River, they found the only touch of civilization to be a depot of the American Fur Co. which was established at the foot of what is now Washington Avenue in downtown Grand Haven, in an unplanted, wooded harbor area on Lake Michigan.

Rix Robinson had the U.S. patent rights to Grand Haven area lands, dated from December 2, 1833. That was the year Reverend Ferry, in failing health, made a canoe trip along both shores of Lake Michigan with a friend, Robert Stuart, a man he had converted to Christianity.

Liking what he saw of the virgin country beauty and lumber possibilities, Reverend Ferry first made the 16 day canoe trip on the Grand River and then returned to Mackinac for his family in 1834.

He chartered the schooner "Supply" and brought Mrs. Ferry, their three sons, his good friend Pierre C. Duvernay, his wife and four children, laborers, and workmen. The party of settlers numbered 21 persons on arrival November 2, 1834.

The Grand Haven Company was organized before the arrival of the families. Equal partners in the venture to buy lands, erect mills and establish communities were Rix Robinson, Reverend Ferry, Robert Stuart and Nathan H. White, a brother-in-law of Ferry.

Grand Haven then had pine trees 100 to 150 feet tall. They were three to five feet in diameter and had been standing 250 to 300 years.

Except for Rix Robinson and his family, and Louis Campau, the agent at the trading post, there were no other white settlers within 35 miles. Fortunately, the first winter was a mild one and Reverend Ferry and helpers built his own home in 1835, across from the trading post, in downtown Grand Haven, the present site of The Kirby House formerly Lord Peppermill).

The Ferry family found the Indians friendly and would often invite them to spend the night.

Reverend Ferry had planned to name the town Stuart, but Robinson was first in having the original plat recorded as the Village of Grand Haven, April 15, 1835.

The first lumber rafts started coming down the Grand River in 1838 and this industry remained profitable in the area for 50 years.

In the year 1850, Grand Haven area's six saw miles were producing 60,000 feet of lumber a day. In 1858 the mills cut over 50 million board feet of lumber.

Spring Lake was first platted as Mill Point Village on December 10, 1849. Ferrysburg was platted on January 26, 1857. It was first known as Ottawa Point.

The coming of the railroad marked the end of the frontier era for Grand Haven. The new depot of the Detroit and Milwaukee Railroad opened on the Dewey Hill side of the Grand River in 1859. Ottawa County was organized in 1837 with the first commission meeting held in Grand Haven on April 12, 1838.

The population of Grand Haven was 3,140 in 1870. Immense quantities of grain and freight were shipped out of the port in the 1870's and Highland Park was developed as a summer resort.

In 1872, the discovery of "magnetic mineral waters with strange healing powers" was discovered in the city (site of the present post office) and started Grand Haven's tourist industry. The mineral waters have long since ceased to be popular but tourism continues to be an important part of this area's economy.

More than a million people visit the Tri-Cities annually. There is something for everybody in our area. The lumbering era has died out but it was replaced by a thriving manufacturing era combined with a tourism boom. Whether you are moving here or are just visiting, you will always remember something that you love about the Tri-Cities.
